

Some Javadoc Tags

Java Tag	Description	Syntax
@author	The name of the code author	@author name-text
@version	The version of the class being developed	@version version-text
@since	The release date	@since release-date
@param	The specified parameter-name followed by the specified description	@param parameter-name description
@return	The value being returned from a method	@return description
@override	The method override a method defined in its superclass	@override
@throws	The exception generated by a method	@throws class-name description
{@code}	Gives text which is interpreted as a literal and not HTML when the documentation is generated	{@code text}
{@inheritDoc}	Inerits documentation from the nearest superclass or interface (use when modifying the original)	{@inheritDoc}
@see	Gives a reference to a related class or gives a citation	@see reference

Note:  may be used in your javadoc to force a line break when the documentation is generated as an HTML document.